

University of Tampa Student Affiliates Chapter (ACS)

The Chapter received a commendable award from the ACS for “its activities in undergraduate science education and in preparing the next generation of chemical professionals”, according to an article in UT Journal (Winter 2008, p.9), a publication of the University of Tampa.

The article also carried a picture of members mixing up a batch of ice cream in the Vaughn Center lobby using liquid nitrogen as a treat to recruit new members.

Advisor Dr. John Struss was commended by ACS President Dr. Catherine T. Hunt, Who noted , “Professor Struss’s efforts certainly represent the best in undergraduate science and mentoring around the country.”

University of South Florida Science Club

In December, members sponsored a toy-collecting drive for less fortunate children as part of a larger U.S. Marine Corps program.
